Fees, process and timings

Meter installation fees

Origin does not currently charge fees for a meter installation in South Australia. However, if that has changed by the time we receive your completed form we'll contact you to let you know the fees that apply. You can find out more details about the current fees at originenergy.com.au/meterfees. SA Power Network will pass on any distributor fees to you directly.

Access to the property

To get your work done, you'll need to give us clear and safe access to the property and the meter location.

Just so you know, if we don't have this:

- we'll need to reschedule the work for another day and fees may apply
- the timeframes for meter installations no longer apply.

Process and timeframes

We'll arrange to install your meter within six business days from the date we're informed that the connection service is complete, or on a date that we agree on. This timeframe won't apply if:

- you haven't provided the correct paperwork, or the paperwork is incomplete
- the meter provider doesn't have clear and safe access to your site or meter box or they're prevented from entering the property
- the site isn't ready, and all work required at the premises isn't yet complete
- turning off the power at your site will impact the electricity supply of other properties.

For more information about the process and timeframes, head to originenergy.com.au/meters

I provide consent for my electrician to act on my behalf to agree on a date for the meter installation.
