Bundle Requirements

Origin Home Telephone is only available when bundled with an Origin broadband service.

Service and Plan Availability

Origin Home Telephone is not available at all locations or to all premises. You will need an active Origin broadband service as part of this service. Further qualification checks will be required to determine the phone and broadband service available to you. To check what's available to you please visit www.originbroadband.com.au

Please note that Origin does not supply UNI-V or 'Fiber' phone services.

Service Constraints

This service may not be suitable if you require an uninterrupted supply due to a serious medical illness or condition. Some equipment like medical alarms may not be compatible with the nbn® infrastructure. This service does not include a battery backup power supply.

You should contact your device supplier to find out if your device is compatible (including, but not limited to, fax machines, alarms, medical alerts, and EFTPOS machines) and will work before connecting to the nbn® infrastructure.

We do not provide access to premium call services such as 1900 numbers.

Priority Assistance

Origin is not able to offer Priority Assistance. Origin recommends that you contact Telstra if you require a Priority Assistance service.

Origin Acceptable & Fair Use Policy

The Origin Acceptable & Fair Use Policy applies to excessive and unreasonable use of this service. Further details on the Origin Acceptable & Fair Use policy can be found at originenergy.com.au/fair-use

Equipment Required

You will need a compatible handset to use this service. Please be aware that most handsets will plug into your Origin broadband equipment, but we cannot guarantee that your existing handset will work.

You will also need a VoIP Analogue Telephone Adapter (ATA) or an approved router with a built in ATA. Origin can provide you with a ZTE H61001 that includes an inbuilt ATA and has 2 VoIP ports as an additional cost as part of your broadband service.
